

Keso presented with service award

OKLAHOMA CITY – Larson R. Keso, an orthodontist practicing in Oklahoma City, is the recipient of the 2015 American Association of Orthodontists James E. Brophy Distinguished Service Award.

Keso is a graduate of Oklahoma State University and from the Washington University (St. Louis) School of Dental Medicine. After

Larson R. Keso

After serving three years active duty as a captain in the U.S. Air Force, he returned to Washington University and earned a master's degree in orthodontics.

He has served as president of the Oklahoma County Dental Society, Oklahoma Orthodontic Society, Southwestern Society of Orthodontists, Tweed Study Club of Texas and the American Association of Orthodontists.

He was named Dentist of the Year in 1997 by the Oklahoma Dental Association and received the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 2001 from the Washington University School of Dental Medicine.

Keso is a clinical assistant professor in the Department of Orthodontics at the University of Oklahoma College of Dentistry.

– Staff report